Missy Mazzoli was recently deemed “one of the more consistently inventive, surprising composers now working in New York” (The New York Times) and “Brooklyn’s post-millennial Mozart” (Time Out New York), and has been praised for her “apocalyptic imagination” (Alex Ross, The New Yorker). Mazzoli’s music has been performed all over the world by the Kronos Quartet, eighth blackbird, pianist Emanuel Ax, Opera Philadelphia, Scottish Opera, LA Opera, Cincinnati Opera, New York City Opera, the Detroit Symphony, the LA Philharmonic, the Minnesota Orchestra, and many others. In 2018 she made history when she became one of the first two women to be commissioned by the Metropolitan Opera. That year she was also nominated for a Grammy in the category of “Best Classical Composition” for her work Vespers for Violin, recorded by violinist Olivia De Prato.

Mazzoli is currently the Mead Composer-in-Residence at the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. From 2012-2015 she was Composer-in-Residence with Opera Philadelphia, Gotham Chamber Opera and Music Theatre-Group, and in 2011/12 was Composer/Educator in residence with the Albany Symphony. In 2013, Missy joined the composition faculty at the Mannes College of Music, a division of the New School. From 2007-2011 she was Executive Director of the MATA Festival in New York, and in 2016, along with composer Ellen Reid and in collaboration with the Kaufman Music Center, Missy founded Luna Composition Lab, a mentorship program and support network for female-identifying, non-binary and gender non-conforming composers ages 13-19.

Mazzoli has received considerable acclaim for her operatic compositions. Her third opera, Proving Up was commissioned by Washington National Opera, Opera Omaha and New York’s Miller Theatre. Mazzoli’s second opera, Breaking the Waves, was described as “among the best 21st-century operas yet” (Opera News), “savage, heartbreaking and thoroughly original” (Wall Street Journal), and “dark and daring” (New York Times). She is an active TV and film composer, and recently wrote and performed music for Mozart in the Jungle. Missy’s music has been recorded and released on labels including New Amsterdam, Cedille, Bedroom Community, 4AD and Innova. Mazzoli is an active pianist and keyboardist, and often performs with Victoire, a band she founded in 2008 dedicated to her own compositions. Their debut full-length CD, Cathedral City, was named one of 2010’s best classical albums by Time Out New York, NPR, The New Yorker and the New York Times, and was followed by the critically acclaimed Vespers for a New Dark Age, a collaboration with percussionist Glenn Kotche.

Missy is the recipient of the 2017 Music Critics Association of America Inaugural Award for Best Opera, the 2018 Godard Lieberson Fellowship from the American Academy of Arts and Letters, a 2015 Foundation for Contemporary Arts Award, four ASCAP Young Composer Awards, a Fulbright Grant to The Netherlands, the Detroit Symphony’s Elaine Lebenbom Award, and grants from the Jerome Foundation, American Music Center, and the Barlow Endowment. She has been awarded fellowships from the MacDowell Colony, Yaddo, Ucross, VCCA, the Blue Mountain Center and the Hermitage. Her music is published by G. Schirmer.
GUEST ENSEMBLES

The award-winning h2 quartet has been wowing audiences since 2002. h2 takes advantage of the great expressive capacity of their instrument by programming traditional, avant-garde, minimalist, and jazz-influenced works in surprising and compelling ways. h2 has performed throughout the United States, in Europe, the UK and in Asia.

The ensemble has released five critically-acclaimed recordings: Generations, Times & Spaces, Groove Machine, Hard Line, and Enrapture. Each of these albums introduces audiences to a different side of the saxophone, with the latter three comfortably bridging the gap between the popular and avant-garde sides of American music.

The h2 quartet has been featured on NPR and PBS programs, including the nationally-syndicated Backstage Pass. Along with demonstrating a mastery of traditional quartet repertoire, h2 is dedicated to the commissioning and performing of new works. The quartet has commissioned works by Drew Baker, Claudio Gabriele, Takuma Itoh, David MacDonald, Victor Marquez-Barrios, Roger Petersen, Forrest Pierce, David Rakowski, Jesse Ronneau, Bill Ryan, Matthew Schoendorff, Daniel Wohl, and has premiered works by John Mackey, Marc Mellits, Mari Takano, and Amy Williams.

The h2 quartet has won prizes at the Fischoff National Chamber Music Competition (First Prize, Gold Medals) and the North American Saxophone Alliance Saxophone Quartet Competition (first prize), among others. The group was also finalists in the Concert Artists Guild Competition, and earned Honorable Mentions at the Plowman Chamber Music Competition, the Chesapeake Bay Chamber Music Competition, and the Coleman Chamber Music Competition. h2 is also the recipient of several Aaron Copland Fund Grants.

The h2 quartet is a Vandoren and Yamaha Artist Ensemble.

Called “contemporary chamber trailblazers” by the Boston Globe, Hub New Music – composed of flute, clarinet, violin, and cello – is forging new pathways in 21st-century repertoire. The ensemble’s ambitious commissioning projects and “appealing programs” (New Yorker) celebrate the rich diversity of today’s classical music landscape. Its performances have been described as “gobsmacking” (Cleveland Classical), “innovative” (WBUR), and “the cutting edge of new classical music” (Taos News).

Hub’s debut album, Soul House, released on New Amsterdam Records in 2020 was called “ingenious and unequivocally gorgeous” by the Boston Globe. The ensemble’s upcoming recording with Silkroad’s Kojiro Umezaki (shakuhachi) and Asia-America New Music Institute (AANMI) will be released on Tôrô Records.

Recent projects include Terra Nova with composer/songwriter collective Oracle Hysterical; The Nature of Breaking, a 30-minute collaborative work with composer/harpist Hannah Lash; and a choreographed production of Robert Honstein’s Soul House with Boston’s Urbanity Dance. Upcoming projects include Requiem for the Enslaved, an evening length mass by Carlos Simon supported by Georgetown University’s GU272 Project that honors the lives of 272 African American slaves and their descendants; a new ‘modular’ work by Sō Percussion’s Jason Treuting; and new works by composers Nina C. Young, Nathalie Joachim, and Laura Kaminsky. For its visionary programming, HNM was named one of WQXR’s “10 Cutting-Edge Artists that Have Captured the Imagination” in 2016.

Residency activities have brought Hub New Music to the New England Conservatory, Princeton, Harvard, University of Michigan, University of Texas-Austin, UC Irvine, University of Nebraska-Lincoln, Stetson University, Bowling Green State University, Boston Conservatory, University of Hawaii, and others. In 2020-21 the ensemble introduced HubLab, a K-12 residency program that uses graphic scores and improvisation to create group compositions with students of all levels.

PROGRAM NOTES

The title New Addresses was suggested by a collection of poetry by Kenneth Koch, a member of the much-beloved New York School. I was inspired by the emotional immediacy of Koch’s work and wanted to echo that in my quartet for the fabulous Boston-based quartet, Hub New Music. The poems in Koch’s collection are addressed, in the second person, to a specific object or person of interest (“The Italian Language,” “My Father’s Business,” “Piano Lessons”). Each of the three interconnected movements in New Addresses are inspired by one of the poems from the eponymous collection. The first, “To Breath,” features the insisting chuffing of the flutist. The second, “To My Heart at the Close of Day,” evokes, via a long violin solo, the protagonist’s melancholic mood at dusk. And the last, “To Yes,” is a rhythmic, energetic march that insists—affirmatively—on the same note. It is dedicated, with affection, to Hub.

Christopher Cerrone (b. 1984) has been commissioned by LA Opera, the Los Angeles Philharmonic, the Cincinnati Symphony, the Detroit Symphony, the Phoenix Symphony, Third Coast Percussion, the Los Angeles Chamber Orchestra, the Calder Quartet, and Eighth Blackbird. Cerrone’s opera, Invisible Cities, was a 2014 Pulitzer Prize finalist. Cerrone is also the winner of the 2015-2016 Samuel Barber Rome Prize in Music Composition. Christopher Cerrone holds degrees from the Yale School of Music and the Manhattan School of Music, and teaches at Mannes School of Music.

Wavelengths – One of the most exciting aspects of working with Hub New Music, a quartet consisting of flute, clarinet, violin, cello, is their commitment to performing the work dozens of times over a number of seasons. This ethos of the group gives Hub the chance to get to know a work intimately and evolve their interpretation over time. It also gives the composer an opportunity to try compositional ideas that one would not attempt with more limited performance prospects. With this piece, I want to create a playing environment that will result in dramatically different performances from one night to another. I intend to accomplish this by primarily focusing on tempo: I will be asking certain musicians of the ensemble to play together in one tempo, while having others play independently from them in a different tempo. The result is a texture that is partially aleatoric, but one that still requires tight ensemble playing. The combinations may seem somewhat limited with just four musicians, but given the variety of colors that Hub’s instrumentation possesses, there is still plenty of possibilities to explore. This under-explored texture, particularly in chamber music, is one that relinquishes some control from the composer and leaves more interpretive onus on the performers, something that I am interested in exploring with this piece, especially considering how many times Hub will be performing the work. I will be particularly interested to see how the performance of the work will evolve as the performers become more accustomed to the piece and the unique way that this piece will compel them to interact with one another. Wavelengths was commissioned by Hub New Music.

Takuma Itoh has been the recipient of many awards including the Charles Ives Scholarship from the American Academy of Arts and Letters, the Barlow Endowment, and the ASCAP/CBDNA Frederick Fennell Prize. Itoh’s music has been performed by the Albany Symphony, the Tucson Symphony Orchestra, Hawaii Symphony Orchestra, Alarm Will Sound, the Cabrillo Festival Orchestra, the St. Lawrence Quartet, the Cassatt Quartet, the Momenta Quartet, and many others. His works can be heard on Albany and Blue Griffin Records and are published by Theodore Presser, Resolute Music, and Murphy Music Press. Itoh serves as an Associate Professor of Music at the University of Hawaii at Manoa.

Agreeable Gray – Over the past two years I had to move a lot and during that time of constant apartment search, although I was seeing a lot of different places, there was something in common between all of them. At first I couldn’t place my finger on what it was, but later, I found out that there is color called Agreeable Gray that the reality industry identified as the one of the most compelling colors to rent or sell properties. In the piece, ideas such as the constant change versus stagnation surface in the musical texture. Each member of the ensemble operates in this seamless texture, where all of the instruments blend, in a kind of agreeable gray.

Christian Quiñones (b. 1996) is a Puerto Rican composer whose music explores concepts like cultural identity, and the intersection between vernacular music, electronic textures, rock, and Latin music. He has been performed and commissioned by members of Dal Niente, Loadbang, Hub New Music, Onix Ensemble, and many others. A graduate of the University of Illinois (MM), Christian is a Ph.D. candidate at Princeton University.

Missing Words VI is part of a larger series of works, Missing Words (I-VI), composed in homage to the newly-created German words presented in Ben Schott’s book, Schottenfreude: German Words for the Human Condition (Blue Rider Press/Penguin Group). These Seinfeld-Ian words illuminate everyday experiences for which English has no synonyms. The words are therefore “missing” from English, and Schott has proposed German words we can adopt into English as we have adopted Doppelgänger, Schadenfreude and Wanderlust. I love the wit, humor, pathos and intimacy of these words, and use the situations they evoke as points of departure for the music. The series as a whole speaks to the complexity of life and human experience, and how all the little bits of the everyday “present” can help us find deeper meaning in our own. Some thoughts on each movement below (Schott’s definitions in quotes):

I., III., V. Witzbeharrsamkeit (Joke-Insistence) II: “Unashamedly repeating a bon mot until it is properly heard by everyone present.” The lively chatter of parties. The piccolo futilely proclaims something (they believe is) clever (about Beethoven, during his anniversary year). The bass clarinet and violin try again later.

II. Betttrug (Bed-Deception): “The fleeting sense of disorientation on waking in a strange bed.” Basking in the glorious first moments of waking in a new place. The first time since lockdown. Light streams through the window. Wishing it would last forever.

IV. Dielennystagmus (Hallway-Nystagmus): “Repeatedly catching and avoiding people’s gazes when, say, approaching them down a long corridor.” A game – catching and averting. Life filled with only gazes.

VI. Erebussteror (Erebus-Terror): “Dread at the first indications of a fatal disease.” A thread of dignity amidst what’s looming.

VII. Rolleirückblende (Rollei-Flashback): “The flood of memory released when looking at old photos.” Thinking back – but remaining here.

Eric Nathan’s (b. 1983) music has been called “as diverse as it is arresting” with a “constant vein of ingenuity and expressive depth” (San Francisco Chronicle), “thoughtful and inventive” (The New Yorker), and as a “marvel of musical logic” (Boston Classical Review). Nathan is a 2013 Rome Prize Fellow and 2014 Guggenheim Fellow and has garnered acclaim internationally through performances by Andris Nelsons and the Boston Symphony Orchestra, National Symphony Orchestra, Berlin Philharmonic’s Scharoun Ensemble, soprano Dawn Upshaw, violinist Jennifer Koh, at the New York Philharmonic’s 2014 and 2016 Biennials, and at the Tanglewood, Aspen, Aldeburgh, Cabrillo, Yellow Barn and MATA festivals. Nathan currently serves as Associate Professor of Music in Composition-Theory at the Brown University Department of Music.

Farfalle Cotte means “cooked bowtie pasta” (or “cooked butterflies”).

Composer Marc Mellits is one of the leading American composers of his generation, enjoying hundreds of performances throughout the world every year, making him one of the most performed living composers in the United States. From Carnegie Hall and the Kennedy Center, to prestigious music festivals in Europe and the US, Mellits’ music is a constant mainstay on programs throughout the world. His unique musical style is an eclectic combination of driving rhythms, soaring lyricism, and colorful orchestrations that all combine to communicate directly with the listener. Mellits’ music has been played by major ensembles across the globe and he has been commissioned by groups such as the Kronos Quartet, Orpheus Chamber Orchestra, Royal Concertgebouw Orchestra (Holland), Duo Assad, Bang On A Can All-Stars, Eliot Fisk, Canadian Brass, Nexus Percussion, Debussy Quartet, Third Coast Percussion, among many others. Marc Mellits is an Associate Professor of music at the University of Illinois at Chicago. He lives in Chicago with his wife and two daughters, and spends significant time in Romania.

Jeu d’Esprit is a highly virtuosic three-minute fanfare whim, which connects, combines, and transforms majestic motives with ornamental materials (which are almost Baroque-like in their arabesques and trills). Given that there are only two instruments, and they can each only play one note at a time, I worked hard to give the illusion that this fanfare is about harmony. This, despite that we never hear more than two notes played together. It is at times fiery, at times fluid, and generally ablaze with energy. The work was made as a gift to the Orpheus Chamber Orchestra who asked for a fanfare for their spring 2010 gala fundraiser. The music is dedicated to Connie Steensma and Lizabeth Newman for their leadership, passion, and generosity. — Augusta Read Thomas

Augusta Read Thomas’s music creates a powerfully dramatic sense of “lyricism under pressure.” Her compositional process often evolves from short motives which are expanded, contracted, and embellished harmonically or used themselves as the harmonic basis for new melodies. The result is a music of fascinating, complex textures with an urgent, forward-driving momentum. Thomas studied at Yale, and later at the Royal Academy of Music with William Karlins, Alan Stout and Jacob Druckman. Commissions from major American symphony orchestras in the 1990s, along with international performances by Rostropovich, Boulez, Barenboim, Knussen and Eschenbach sealed her reputation in the United States and beyond. Thomas is the University Professor of Composition at the University of Chicago.

Stubborn as Hell was commissioned by virtuoso clarinetist Robert Spring. I heard Bob perform in September 2010 when I attended his clarinet concert at Arizona State University – Tempe. Bob is one of those wondrous musicians that plays the most challenging pieces written for the instrument and make them sound effortless. When he commissioned me, I wanted to write a piece that not only reflected his technical and musical abilities, but also his great sense of humor, hence the title and premise of the piece. The “stubbornness” of the title refers to the manner in which the two instruments incessantly battle each other around the pitch D, and how they willfully get stuck repeating pitches and gestures. The composer made an arrangement of the piece for two soprano saxophones in 2016. — Stacy Garrop

Stacy Garrop is a full-time freelance composer living in the Chicago area. She served as the first Emerging Opera Composer of Chicago Opera Theater’s Vanguard Program (2018-2020), during which she composed The Transformation of Jane Doe and What Magic Reveals with librettist Jerre Dye. She also held a 3-year compos-
Jeffrey Loeffert serves as Associate Professor of Music Theory and Saxophone at Oklahoma State University. A dedicated teacher, Loeffert recently received the Oklahoma State University College of Arts & Sciences Junior Faculty Award for Scholarly Excellence, the Wise-Diggs-Berry Award for Teaching Excellence, and the Friends of Music Distinguished Music Professor Award. An active composer, Loeffert's compositions have been performed throughout the United States and abroad including at Society of Composers, Inc. conferences, College Music Society conferences, US Navy Band International Symposia, North American Saxophone Alliance conferences, and World Saxophone Congresses, as well as venues throughout Europe and Asia. Loeffert's composition titled Bombinate was recently selected for inclusion on the 31st volume of the Society of Composers Inc. CD Series. Loeffert was also recently selected as the Oklahoma Music Teachers Association 2018 Composer-in-Residence with the Albany Symphony (2009/2010) and Skaneateles Festival (2011), and as well as on faculty of the Fresh Inc Festival (2012-2017) and Roosevelt University (2000-2016). She earned degrees in music composition at the University of Michigan-Ann Arbor (B.M.), University of Chicago (M.A.), and Indiana University (D.M.).

Bombinate is scored for three soprano saxophones and singing bowl. The singing bowl is performed by the third soprano saxophonist. The word bombinate is a literary device, which means to make a humming or buzzing noise. The work is largely centered around concert D, which is initially sounded by the singing bowl. The saxophone parts weave in and out of this center pitch the microtonal fluctuations, tone distortions, and articulative techniques. The “buzzing” noise comes from this constant sounding of a center pitch, which is at times very faint and at other times only inferred. Though the work is a meditation, it also showcases the wide range of emotions from frenetic energy to anger when we close our eyes and reflect on our surroundings. – Jeffrey Loeffert

Echolocation is a piece that was inspired by sounds created by some simple electronic music techniques, most notably, the delay effect. The delay effect, in which the initial sound is played back at fixed intervals with a decay in the loudness, creates a simple “echo” effect. What piqued my interest in this simple effect was when I started layering different rates of delays simultaneously to create a rich, intricate texture of polyphony and polyrhythms. I attempted to recreate this acoustically using just the saxophone quartet, and used this initial idea as the recurring “theme” of the piece. The rhythms resulting from attempting to recreate the delay effect are extremely complicated and I would not have attempted such a difficult piece had I not known the high caliber of the musicians of the h2 quartet. I would like to thank them for their extraordinary dedication to the piece, and allowing me to explore techniques that I would not normally have had the opportunity to consider. – Takuma Itoh

Corpus, fractum is a meditation on sacrifice and loss, and it is a meditation on continuation. It is a meditation on the draining of color, and on the slow, seeping grayness of an ashen ocean meeting a pallid sky within a dense, insipid bank of fog. It is a meditation on the giving way of a body when a mind cannot, and on the insulating numbness of a grieving and bewildered psyche separated from a broken body. It is a meditation on the taste of unspoken words rolled into a suffocating, unswallower bolus. It is a meditation on pressing against a burning, tensive membrane of silence. It is a meditation on screaming into a vacuum, and it is a meditation on futility. But it is also a meditation on strength. It is a meditation on observing the texture of concrete, or the excoriation of a rusted beam. It is a meditation on gathering the dust in a soul and forging it into a prism. It is a meditation on the focused intensification of light, and on the angles and wavelengths of its refraction. It is a meditation on calculated steps, and on a summation of limits as the time over which those calculations are made reaches zero. It is a meditation on observed organically, and a meditation on more detailed understandings. It is a meditation on empathy, and a meditation on transformation. It is a meditation on the hope that one may start anew. – Tina Tallon

Winner of the 2021-2022 Frederic A. Juilliard/Walter Damrosch Rome Prize in Music Composition, Tina Tallon is a temporal media artist, engineer, historian, and educator whose work grapples with questions of identity, agency, and power as constructed and performed in our increasingly technologically-mediated world. Dr. Tallon received her Ph.D. in music composition from the University of California San Diego in 2020, where she explored the potential of electronic music as a reparative medium for engaging trauma. She currently serves as Assistant Professor of AI and the Arts in the University of Florida’s College of the Arts. Her concert music and interactive installations have been widely performed and presented by ensembles such as the LA Philharmonic New Music Group, Ensemble Intercontemporain, wild Up, and Talea, in venues ranging from some of the world’s most celebrated concert halls to aquariums, subterranean tunnels, and grain silos. She has received numerous awards, grants, and fellowships from organizations such as the Harvard Radcliffe Institute for Advanced Study, the American Academy in Rome, the Barlow Endowment, ASCAP, and NewMusicUSA, among others. Recent commissioners include Guerilla Opera, the LA Philharmonic, the La Jolla Symphony, and the Peabody Institute of Johns Hopkins University.

Sunburnt was written during a hot summer in Honolulu, hence the title (rest assured, I was composing indoors). In contrast to Doublethink, I allowed myself to simply write what came naturally, and as a result, the ideas for this piece flowed much more quickly. I recall coming up with the first two measures of the piece on my first day of composing the piece and wondering if I should spend more time exploring other options as I would normally do. Instead, I decided to forge on, determined not to overthink certain decision-making moments and let the piece take shape out of this initial idea. Maybe it’s because of this more carefree approach, but this work feels joyous and exuberant as any other work that I have ever composed. – Takuma Itoh

Z(4430) – The LHC (Large Hadron Collider), is a particle accelerator built by the European Organization for Nuclear Research (CERN) in Geneva Switzerland. It is the largest and most powerful particle accelerator ever built, allowing scientists to probe more deeply the inner-workings of matter and energy. I have always been interested in science and I was excited when I first heard about the LHC’s development. Z(4430) is a discovery made by the LHCb experiment at CERN, the first confirmed exotic hadron that combines four quarks. This minute-long encore piece was written for CERN’s Physics of Music and Music of Physics workshop at the Montreux Jazz Festival. I convert the number 4430 into musical notes as the basis of this work, and I keep the rhythms constantly shifting as the saxophones collide. Z(4430) was written for the Donald Sinta Saxophone Quartet: Dan Graser, Joe Girard, Danny Hawthorne-Foss, and Zach Stern, and premiered at the Montreux International Jazz Festival on July 12, 2014 for CERN’s “Physics of Music and Music of Physics” program. I arranged it for clarinet quartet for the 10th and Broadway Quartet. – Roger Zare

Roger Zare has been praised for his “en-viable grasp of orchestration” (New York Times) and for writing music with “formal clarity and an alluringly mercurial surface.” Often inspired by science, mathematics, literature, and mythology, his colorfully descriptive and energetic works have been performed in five continents by such ensembles as the American Composers Orchestra, the Minnesota Orchestra, the Sarasota Orchestra, the Australian-based Trio Anima Mundi, the Donald Sinta Quartet, and the New York Youth Symphony. An award-winning composer, Zare has received the ASCAP Nissim Prize, three BMI Student Composer Awards, an ASCAP Morton Gould award, a New York Youth Symphony First Music Commission, the 2008 American Composers Orchestra Underwood Commission, a 2010 Charles Ives Scholarship from the American Academy of Arts and Letters, a Copland House Residency Award, Grand Prize in the inaugural China-US Emerging Composers Competition, and many other honors. An active pianist, Zare performed his chamber work, Geometries, with Cho-Liang Lin, Jian Wang, and Burt Hara at the 2014 Hong Kong International Chamber Music Festival. He has been composer in residence at the Chesapeake Chamber Music Festival, the Salt Bay Chamber Music Festival, the Chamber Music Festival of Lexington and the SONAR new music ensemble. Zare’s collection of 21 concert etudes for solo clarinet are paired with written masterclasses by clarinetist Andy Hudson in Elements of Contemporary Clarinet Technique. He holds degrees from the University of Michigan (DMA ’12), the Peabody Conservatory (MM ’09) and the University of Southern California (BM ’07). Zare currently serves as instructional assistant professor of composition and theory at Illinois State University and is co-director of the RED NOTE New Music Festival.

PROGRAM NOTES

Touches – I find the Pierrot-core of flute, clarinet, violin, and cello a very difficult ensemble to write for in isolation. There isn’t much in the way of homogeneity to fall back on. The instrumentation is lean. There is a lot of overlap in terms of range. All these things and more are good motivators to focus on the fundamentals; there is not much room for gimmick. Touches is an exploration of the way the four of these instruments work together and how their capability spaces intersect. The gradients of the efficacy by which they approximate each other’s functions form the landscape of the piece. This concept of “touching” between instruments is extended to the way information is handled by individual players (a focus on counterpoint) and more fundamentally to the situation and material quality of the sounds: attacks, resonances, and the tactile experience of fingering while breathing or bowing.
In When the Sea Breeze Blows, the pitch materials derive from my recordings of wind chimes. To record the instrument's sounds, I employed multiple playing techniques, imported the recordings into Orchidea's patch (Max/MSP), and used a dynamic orchestration algorithm to visualize the recordings. As a result, I obtained a consistent series of pitch materials from which I developed the piece. I also reorganized a small portion of the musical textures from the recordings to duplicate them by combining the timbre of the instruments variously. I lived by the sea for several months, in an apartment on the coast. Sometimes at dusk or dawn, I would pause from composing to stare from my balcony out at the horizon on the sea. I would feel the sea breeze caressing my cheeks and tickling the wind chimes hanging next door. Those sensations would always bless me with tranquility as a respite from the anxiety and pressure of the world. In my composition, I wish to grasp those moments of serenity. – Hao Zou

Hao Zou was born in HuaiBei in China's Anhui Province in 1996. Having begun learning the piano and erhu at an early age, in 2009 he was admitted to the Music Middle School affiliated with the Shanghai Conservatory of Music to study composition under Professor Ding Ying. In 2019, he graduated from the Oberlin Conservatory of Music where, supported by a distinguished scholarship, he studied under Jesse Jones and Stephen Hartke. He is currently pursuing a Master's in composition with Chen Yi, Zhou Long, and Yotam Haber at the UMKC Conservatory of Music. Zou has won awards—including the 2021 ASCAP Morton Gould Award—at several prestigious international piano and composition competitions, and many of his instrumental works have been published and distributed by Shanghai Music Publishing House, RMN Music, and Ablaze Records. In his compositions, he weaves together diverse timbres to create complex sounds and reimage the poetics and charm of the traditional Chinese culture that he has known since childhood.

Five Vignettes – Trying a cheese charcuterie, an evening of wine tasting, a box of chocolates: what would a musical equivalent sound like? These five vignettes are meant to be approached in a similar way. Each vignette has its own singular focus, but also has relationships with the other four. They are small works of art meant to be enjoyed in the present moment. The nature of these vignettes, as it is with cheese, wine, and chocolates, are meant to be enjoyable and impermanent experiences. – Antonio Sanz Escallón

Antonio Sanz Escallón is a conductor, composer and pianist who focuses on the theatrical. As a pianist, he made his professional debut with a solo recital at the Cartagena Music Festival in 2018. While in high school, he spent three years writing an evening length musical drama based on Lord of the Flies, which he produced and conducted before graduating. His music has been performed by the ensemble Loadbang, saxophonist Salvador Flores, violinist Barbora Kolárová, and The Rhythm Method Quartet among others. He has attended the Curtis Summerfest and the Lake George Music Festival, and was recently invited as music director for the musical Hairspray at High School for the Performing and Visual Arts. Antonio is currently working toward a Bachelor's degree in Composition at the Moores School of Music, where he has studied with Rob Smith and Marcus Karl Maroney.

I and the Village – This piece is inspired by Marc Chagall’s painting “I and the Village” which evokes Chagall’s memories of his native Hasidic neighborhood outside Vitebsk, Belarus. In this painting, the line that connects the eyes of the peasant and the cow represents their interdependence and partnership; in the Hasids’ community, animals were also humanity’s link to the universe. Chagall used disjunctive geometries to render the scene nostalgic and magical. Composer Yeeun Sim is interested in interconnecting the artwork and the audience, introducing new perspectives of the painting through music. She observes various artistic elements, such as lyrical colors, brightness, and the connections between two or more objects, and incorporates the imaginative spaces and colorful moments shaped by Chagall’s experiences into her music. This piece contains not only Chagall’s village but also the composer’s personal memories of her hometown in Korea. – Yeeun Sim Yeeun Sim is a composer and pianist from rural Seosan, South Korea. She aims to create various atmospheres in her music, inspired by nature, paintings, books, and imaginative spaces to draw emotions from her audience. Her goal is to convey her messages and feelings through her music while considering its influence in the context of diverse audiences. Sim won Second Prize in the Senior International Division of Golden Key Piano Composition Competition in 2020. Her music has been performed by Violinist Youkyung Kim, Cellist Youngeun Lee, and other prominent musicians in Kukje Art Hall (2020), Spielen Art Hall (2019), and Mozart Hall (2018) in Seoul, Korea. Sim started learning piano at the age of 5 and started studying composition with Professor Baichko Cha when she was 15 years old. She graduated from Gyeonggi Arts High School in 2021, where she performed many of her early works as a composer. She is currently pursuing her bachelor’s degree with Kevin Puts at Peabody Conservatory of Music.

Wind Whistle focuses on the conflict and intertwinement between two characters: one is active, fast and restless, while the other is long, sustained and drowning. Both ideas are presented in the very beginning of the piece, and developed throughout in various formats, including multiphonics, slap tonguing, timbre trill, etc. The sound effects of the piece remind me of winter wind whistling through the window. – Wenxin Li

Wenxin Li is a native of Chongqing, China, and is currently pursuing her PhD degree in composition at the University of Iowa, studying with David Gompper, Jean-François Charles and Sivan Cohen Elias. Li's music has been featured at Aspen Music Festival, Composers Conference, SCI National Conference, National Student Electronic Music Event, Midwest Graduate.
Catch (2021) is a saxophone quartet that was inspired by the expansive network of information that we live in and how that information is often curated or, more cynically, suppressed and censored. This often happens when a higher power is economically enticed or politically threatened, and there is a need to twist the narrative to generate more clicks or to maintain a facade of justice thinly veiled on top of oppressive brutality. The piece begins with bytes of information dispatched and caught by the players, which create a flurry of notes as they fizz through the air. The rate of transmission then slowly increases until it reaches full flow—a web of fluid, messy cacophony—which is then brutally quashed by a mocking, menacing tune. The cycle then repeats a couple more times, each apex more chaotic and each suppression more brutal than the last. It is a fun piece that never stops ticking along, but sinister undertones filter through the transparent surface—just like any social media platform or corrupt society. Catch was written for the h2 quartet as part of the 2022 RED NOTE New Music Festival Composition Workshop. – Adrian Wong

Please see page 13 for Wenxin Li’s biography.

Wind Fables – Over the summer of 2021, I wrote Body Memory, a collection of seven miniatures for string quartet. The piece was my first real exploration into the construction of a larger form out of discrete smaller parts—a pursuit that I found both practical and aesthetically satisfying. When I received the opportunity to compose for h2 quartet for the 2022 RED NOTE New Music Festival Composition Workshop, I decided to use the new piece to further explore and develop my ideas about collections of miniatures. The result is another set of seven: Wind Fables (2021) for saxophone quartet. Wind Fables juxtaposes movements that feature the quartet as a whole with movements that feature a solo with trio accompaniment. In addition, each of the solo movements is loosely inspired by one of the Anemoi, the ancient Greek wind gods. In the first movement, “The Call (Prologue),” the quartet presents the melody upon which the entire piece is based. The volatile bari sax solo in “South” is inspired by Notus, the south wind who brings the storms of late summer. The god of the east wind, Boreas, brings the cold gases of winter. Boreas is depicted in the Tower of the Winds holding a conch; the hard-edged soprano sax solo in “North” encircles a blaring conch-like line with howling runs over icy sustains in the trio. In the final movement, “The Echo (Epilogue),” the first movement melody is spread throughout the quartet; thus, it is recast as a shadowy chorale, heard as if from a great distance through space or time. – Patrick Holcomb

The title Shadow Songs comes from the poet (and first president of Senegal) Léopold Senghor’s collection Chants d’Ombre. While Shadow Songs does not seek to evoke Senghor, I was repeatedly drawn to the idea of a shadow song, while composing, and how the notion elegantly and musically... ly seems to mark the “presence of an absence.” Throughout the piece, close canons, multiphonics, and layered timbral effects, accompany simple harmonic and melodic material, creating various kinds of musical “shadows” alongside the music of the piece, and these emergent qualities seem to me different kinds of musical shadows cast across the entire piece. – Chris Williams

The Philadelphia Inquirer called Chris Williams’ music a “a lovely shade of wistful”, while the Daily Review noted his “brilliantly unsettling music” for the Sydney Theatre Company’s production of A Midsummer Night’s Dream at the Sydney Opera House. In 2021, The Tasmanian Symphony Orchestra premiered Chris’ Cor Anglais Concerto, commissioned by the orchestra, while The Song Company are to premiere his major song cycle I pray the sea in 2022. Chris’ work for string orchestra Time before and time after was awarded first prize at the Musica Per Archi competition, and his music was featured in the Song Company’s 35th anniversary tour. Chris is a graduate of the Sydney Conservatorium of Music and the University of Oxford, he has been commissioned by Carnegie Hall, and he was one of only six composers worldwide to be selected by Sir Peter Maxwell Davies to attend his Advanced Composition course at the Darlington International Summer School. Chris is an Associate Artist at the Australian Music Centre and represented by Aurora Artists’ Management.

PROGRAM NOTES

Tooth and Nail was inspired by the extraordinary musical traditions of Uzbekistan, where jaw harp (also called Jew’s harp or mouth harp) plays a prominent role. The jaw harp player consistently plucks the instrument, creating overtones and melodies by changing the shape of his or her mouth, and the central Asian style takes this technique to wild and beautiful extremes. I have created my own version of this music, based on my memories of hearing Uzbek jaw harp players. The electronic part is made up almost entirely of viola samples, allowing the live viola to play in counterpoint with itself. Tooth and Nail was written for violist Nadia Sirota and recorded for her album Baroque. – Missy Mazzoli

Still Life With Avalanche was commissioned by eighth blackbird. The piece is essentially a pile of melodies collapsing in a chaotic free fall. The players layer bursts of sound over the static drones of harmonicas, sketching out a strange and evocative sonic landscape. I wrote this piece while in residence at Blue Mountain Center, a beautiful artist colony in upstate New York. Halfway through my stay there I received a phone call telling me my cousin had passed away very suddenly. There’s a moment in this piece when you can hear that phone call, when the piece changes direction, when the shock of real life works its way into the music’s joyful and exuberant exterior. This is a piece about finding beauty in chaos, and vice versa. It is dedicated to the memory (the joyful, the exuberant and the shocking) of Andrew Rose. – Missy Mazzoli
Lies You Can Believe In, for string trio, was commissioned by Milwaukee-based ensemble Present Music. The “lies” in the title are not untruths, and instead refer to the old-fashioned word for an improvised and embellished story. This type of lie is not malicious; the process of invention and the telling of the tale are ultimately more important than the truth behind the account. In this piece I created my own “lie,” an invented and embellished urban folk music. The strings tell an improvisatory tale, touching upon the violence, energy, mania and rare moments of calm one finds in a city. This piece is inspired as much by modern gypsy music, punk, and electronica as it is by traditional Bulgarian and Romanian folk music. Many thanks to Present Music for engendering and inspiring this piece. – Missy Mazzoli

Angel Fire Duo for Violin and Viola was written in 2014. It is commissioned by Music from Angel Fire with the support of the Bruce E. Howden, Jr. American Composers Project and Friends of the Festival. The premiere was given by Ida Kavafian, Violin, and Steven Tenenbom, Viola, on Wednesday, August 20, 2014, at Angel Fire Community Center, New Mexico. The inspiration of the work largely comes from knowing that the work would be premiered by two wonderful virtuoso musicians, the wife-and-husband team of Ida and Steven. Even (or especially) in a love duo, a couple has to listen to each other all the time, just like in a good relationship. Yet there are also tensions and frictions which need to be resolved. Ultimately, the two must sing together and at the same time express themselves individually; just like in a good relationship. Except for the third movement which was based on a Chinese folk song from Shandong Province, musically the work was freely-composed, in which I hope my multi-cultural baring would somehow seep through. The work is dedicated to Pam, my dear wife. – Bright Sheng

Please see page 3 for Bright Sheng’s biography.

Composed in 1984, The Swan is one of five pieces that composer Liu De-hai wrote for the Pipa in an attempt to depict the creative struggles of the artist and the triumph of creation that comes forth from his sufferings. This traditional Chinese expression of character affords the listener access to the world of the artist and grants a glimpse at the workings of an artist’s mind. The image of the swan is meant to represent both the hidden strength of the artist’s will to create and the peaceful grace of his artistic creation. Using the varied and technical attributes of Pipa, the composer is able to express this idea through his music and the listener should hear the ultimate triumph of the artist in the flowing and beautiful elegance of a swan gliding through a peaceful sky. Similar to the image of the beautiful swan’s wings expanding and stretching out in peaceful flight, is the composer’s attempt to expand above and beyond what he has fashioned in the past and to now create something new. – Yang Wei

Born in Shanghai in 1937, Liu De-hai began to study the Chinese flute first at the age of 13, taking up the pipa four years later. He graduated from the Central Conservatory of Music in 1961 and performed to critical acclaim in over thirty countries. Apart from playing pipa solo at the Central Philharmonic Orchestra, he also taught at the Central Conservatory of Music, followed by China Conservatory, and visited schools and universities, giving recitals and demonstrations on the playing of the instrument. Although Liu was on a crusade to save China from a full-scale invasion by popular music, he himself was not really a traditionalist. In the 70s and 80s, he made a major contribution to the development of the pipa by applying Western-style fingering techniques which had greatly expanded the instrument’s range of expression. As a result he was sometimes criticized by the “old guard”, who believed that traditional music should be preserved in its original form. He has made a number of recordings in China. The best-known recording in the West is certainly the Little Sisters of the Grassland Pipa Concerto, with the Boston Symphony Orchestra under Seiji Ozawa. – Naxos Classical Music

Tibetan Dance was written in 2000. The work was commissioned by Michigan State University for the Verdehr Trio, to whom the work is dedicated. The first two movements of the work are in reminiscence; as if one is hearing songs from a distant memory. The work is anchored on the last movement, when the music gradually becomes real. Here, the music is based on a Tibetan folk dance motive from Qinghai, a Chinese province bordered with Tibet, where I lived during my teenage years. – Bright Sheng

Infinite Horizon is a setting of John Gould Fletcher’s poem “The Calm.” As North America slowly emerges from the Covid-19 pandemic, I related to ...the restlessness that can accompany involuntary idleness, and the hope in an unseen, unknowable future, as well as the simple sense of renewal after a storm. This whole spectrum of emotions came out (and was hopefully reconciled) in the music. – Nicholas Ryan Kelly

New New York Songs (2014) is a new work for the Young People’s Chorus of New York and piano. A setting of excerpts from Walt Whitman’s “Crossing Brooklyn Ferry,” this work is a meditation on life in New York. While ostensibly describing a ferry ride from Manhattan to Brooklyn, Whitman explores the feelings and experiences that connect New Yorkers of all ages and eras. He manages to articulate his profound sense of being apart from the crowd while also recognizing the commonality of all experience. He sees himself at a crossroads between eras, speaking to New Yorkers who will make
The Calm – Largo

In the morning I saw three great ships
Almost motionless
Becalmed on an infinite horizon.

The clatter of waves up the beach,
The grating rush of wet pebbles,
The loud monotonous song of the surf,
All these have soothed me
And have given
My soul to rest.

At noon I shall see waves flashing,
White power of spray.
The steamer, stately,
Kick up white puffs of spray behind them.
The boiling wake
Merges in the blue-black mirror of the sea.

One eye of the sun sees all:
The world, the wave, my heart.
I am content.

In the afternoon I shall dream a dream
Of islands beyond the horizon.

White clouds drift over the sky,
Frigates on a long voyage.

In the evening a mute blue stillness
Clutches at my heart.
Stars sparkle upon the tips of my fingers.

Mystica
I hush,
Fire in the darkness;
The breaking of dreams.

But in the morning I shall see three great ships
Almost motionless
Becalmed on an infinite horizon.

New New York Songs

I. What is it, then, between us?

What is it, then, between us?
What is the count of the scores or hundreds of years between us?
Whatever it is, it avails not—distance avails not, and place avails not.

II. Manhattan Island

I too lived—Brooklyn, of ample hills, was mine;
I too walk’d the streets of Manhattan Island,
and bathed in the waters around it;
I too felt the curious abrupt questionings stir
within me,
In the day, among crowds of people, sometimes they came upon me,
In my walks home late at night, or as I lay in my bed, they came upon me.

A Porter’s Song was commissioned by Classical Movements, Inc. as part of the Erik Daniel Helms New Music Program in collaboration with the Yale Glee Club. The work was premiered on November 16th, 2012, at Yale University, by the Yale Glee Club, conducted by Jeffery Douma. A Porter’s Song is based on two Chinese folk songs from northern Shaanxi Province; both share a sadness of being separated from the loved one. The text is in Chinese, notated in a transliteration of a northern Shaanxi dialect.

and more and more and more and this was written for icarus Quartet and premiered on May 4, 2018 in Baltimore, MD. The primary inspiration for the piece came from the group itself and their incredible dedication to rhythmic vitality and a unification of their ensemble sound, even when performing on disparate instruments. This to me had strong echoes of how a percussion quartet functions and so I decided to treat the two pianists as if they were also building their own percussion setup. This led to both instruments having large sections of the piece with their strings being prepared with mutes and also implementing a myriad of extended techniques (plucking, strumming, scratching, etc). The title “and more and more and more and this” draws its influence from Eastern religion and philosophy. Like the Heart Sutra, “gone, gone, gone beyond, gone beyond beyond” or the writings of Ram Dass, “go in in in, further in, oh much further in, oh you’re just begun, keep going back in," as you reach towards a perceived goal there are only more and more and more possible goals to reach. “There is a beginning. There is a not yet beginning to be a beginning. There is a not yet beginning to be a not yet beginning to be a beginning.” — Lao-tzu

As a student at Rice, I became familiar with the unusual and beautiful cloud formations that appear in East Texas skies. As the light begins to drift was written for Rice’s Hear&Now Ensemble in April 2019; the version for chamber orchestra was completed in August 2019. — Paul Novak

He is currently a PhD student at the University of Chicago, where he has studied with Augusta Read Thomas and Sam Pluta.

Train Ride Home is inspired from the many pieces of traditional wind ensemble I listened to during my commute to and from work over the summer. After listening to great slow works of Frank Ticheli and Eric Whitacre, I decided to have my own take on this style of music. This piece is about me reminiscing on these journeys I would take and my appreciation for this style of music. — Tyler Bloomfield

Christopher Dietz – Christopher Dietz composes music inspired by a wide variety of sources, both real and conceptual. Poetry, sound as sculpture and color, how toddlers play, deep time and the cosmos, rhythm as geometry, religion and politics, animal behavior, and the music of others are a few of the subjects that have informed his musical imagination. In recent years, Christopher's works have been premiered throughout Europe and North America by numerous contemporary ensembles including Alarm Will Sound, Decoda, Ensemble Échappé, NODUS, The Orchestra of the League of Composers, L'Orchestre de la Francophonie, The San Jose Chamber Orchestra, The Toledo Symphony, the University of Michigan Symphonic Band and others. His work has been featured at the Civic Orchestra of Chicago's New Music Workshop, NUNCI, soundSCAPE (Italy), The Etchings Festival of Contemporary Music (France), New Music on the Point, and Mizzou New Music Summer Festival among others. Residencies at MacDowell, Copland House, Canada's Banff Centre, The Camargo Foundation and the Blue Mountain Center have been important milestones in the development of Christopher's compositional voice. His honors and awards include ASCAP's Morton Gould Young Composer Awards, The Minnesota Orchestra Composer Institute, The Yvar Mikhashoff Trust for New Music, The Utah Arts Festival's Orchestral Commission Prize, and many others. His music has been released on New Focus, AMP, Navona, American Modern, and Cambria Records. He holds degrees in composition and theory from the University of Michigan (PhD), the Manhattan School of Music (MM) and the University of Wisconsin (BM). He has been on the faculty at Hillsdale College and Oberlin Conservatory. He is Associate Professor at Bowling Green State University.

Shanghai Overture was originally written for orchestra, a commission by my alma mater, the Shanghai Conservatory of Music, in celebration of its eightieth anniversary. It was premiered on November 27, 2007, by the Youth Symphony Orchestra of the Shanghai Conservatory of Music, conducted by Muhai Tang. The version for symphonic band was commissioned by the University of Michigan Symphony Band for their 2011 tour to China. It is written for two piccolos, flute, two oboes, English horn, clarinet in Eb, five clarinets in Bb, bass clarinet, two bassoons, contrabassoon, soprano saxophone, alto saxophone, tenor saxophone, two baritone saxophones, four French horns in F, two trumpets in C, trumpet in C and Bb, two tenor trombones, bass trombone, tuba, timpani, four percussionists playing: Peking Opera cymbals (京中钗), small Peking Opera cymbals (京小钗), Peking Opera gong (京大锣), small Peking Opera gong (京小锣), small Chinese tom-tom (小堂鼓) or large bango, two temple-blocks-high and low (大小木鱼), wind-gong (风锣), ratchet (滚轮器), triangle (三角铁), glockenspiel (钢片琴), crotales with a bass bow (黄铜定音铃, 用低音提琴弓子演奏), large bass drum (低音大鼓), low tam-tam (低音大锣), harp, and contrabasses. In Western music, the term neo-Classic primarily refers to a movement in music composition prevalent in the 1920s and 1930s. While the main aesthetic of the style emphasizes textural clarity, light orchestration and formal balance, some of the compositions were directly linked to specific composers from earlier periods. The best-known composer of the movement was Igor Stravinsky who wrote a neo-Bachian piano concerto, a neo-Pergolesian suite (Pulcinella), and a neo-Mozartian opera (The Rake's Progress). I always wondered what the result would be if I would adopt a similar concept and some of the techniques of the neo-Classical style and apply them to traditional Chinese classical or folk music. Although my approach is somewhat different from Stravinsky, I took the opportunity to explore the idea when I was asked to write a short composition for the Shanghai Conservatory of Music. Shanghai Overture is inspired by two well-known traditional Chinese compositions, General's Degree (将军令) and Purple Bamboo (紫竹调). Whereas both came from the same region near Shanghai, they differ vastly in character and color, one is grand and powerful while the other is light and elegant. Shanghai Overture for symphonic band is dedicated to the Symphony Band at University of Michigan, where I have been teaching since 1995. – Bright Sheng
