The Gibbs Street Duo was formed in June 2020 with the intent to seek out, explore, and introduce music of historically marginalized composers to the musical canon. During the height of the pandemic, the duo focused their energy on presenting their ideas about their recording project at national conferences and various institutions of higher education around North America. Currently, the Gibbs Street Duo is touring colleges and universities across the country to share this inspiring music with students, aficionados, and other music professionals. Their first CD, Memories Unsettled was released in July 2022.

Hilary Glen, cellist, has been praised as a “standout performer” who has successfully “taken on the demanding and most expressive responsibilities assigned to [her] instrument.”

Making her stage debut at the age of 6, Dr. Glen caught the performing bug early. Extremely versatile, she has played rock shows, orchestral concerts and everything in between. Dr. Glen has enjoyed performing on a mountainside in the Italian Alps, Carnegie Hall, the Rochester Jazz Festival, and the Bliss Center in Belize. She has collaborated with many musicians including Stephen Wyczynski, Naoko Tanaka, Catharine Carroll-Lees, Cornelia Heard, Alan Harris, Jayoung Kim, Mikail Kopelman, and Futaba Niekawa. She has been in concert with Joshua Bell, Robin Thicke, Gil Shaham, The Eagles, The Temptations, Gary Hoffman, Yefim Bronfman, The Who, and John Adams.

As a passionate chamber musician, Dr. Glen coordinates and performs with several small ensembles that have played at a wide variety of national and international venues including the Kennedy Center, as well as local schools, churches, coffee shops, hospitals, sidewalks, and senior living centers. Her entrepreneurial spirit has led her to produce interactive chamber music events, as well as full orchestra concerts such as her New World Symphony music and wine pairing event, Heard it Through the Grapevine.

Dr. Glen performs as Assistant Principal in the Atlanta Opera Orchestra, in the Atlanta Ballet Orchestra, and as Principal of the Columbus Symphony Orchestra. She spends her summers traveling to festivals including the Des Moines Metro Opera. She has also graced the orchestral scene as a member of the New World Symphony, and the Rochester Philharmonic Orchestra.
