GUEST COMPOSERS

BOLCOM

National Medal of Arts, Pulitzer Prize, and Grammy Award-winner William Bolcom (born May 26, 1938) is an American composer of keyboard, chamber, operatic, vocal, choral, and symphonic music. Born in Seattle, Washington, he began composition studies at the age of 11 with George Frederick McKay and John Verrall at the University of Washington while continuing piano lessons with Madame Berthe Poncy Jacobson. He later studied with Darius Milhaud at Mills College while working on his Master of Arts degree, with Leland Smith at Stanford University while working on his D.M.A., and with Olivier Messiaen and Milhaud at the Paris Conservatoire, where he received the 2<sup>ème</sup> Prix de Composition. He joined the faculty of the University of Michigan's School of Music in 1973, was named the Ross Lee Finney Distinguished University Professor of Composition in 1994, and retired in 2008 after 35 years. Bolcom won the Pulitzer Prize for music in 1988 for 12 New Etudes for Piano, and his setting of William Blake's Songs of Innocence and Songs of Experience on the Naxos label won four Grammy Awards in 2005: Best Choral Performance, Best Classical Contemporary Composition, Best Classical Album, and Producer of the Year, Classical. As a pianist Bolcom has performed and recorded his own work frequently in collaboration with his wife and musical partner, mezzo-soprano Joan Morris. Their primary specialties in both concerts and recordings are cabaret songs, show tunes, and American popular songs of the 20th-century. They have recorded 25 albums together — Autumn Leaves was released in 2015. As a composer, Bolcom has written four violin sonatas; nine symphonies; four operas (McTeague, A View from the Bridge, A Wedding, and Dinner at Eight), plus several musical theater operas; twelve string quartets; two film scores (Hester Street and Illuminata); incidental music for stage plays, including Arthur Miller's Broken Glass; fanfares and occasional pieces; and an extensive catalogue of chamber, choral, and vocal works. Dinner at Eight premiered at Minnesota Opera in March 2017 to great acclaim. The University of Michigan School of Music, Theatre and Dance Opera Department mounted four performances of it in November 2017 in Ann Arbor, Michigan, and Wexford Festival Opera will mount the European premiere with six performances in October and November 2018 in Wexford, Ireland. 2018 marks the occasion of Mr. Bolcom's 80th birthday, and his work will be celebrated by performances both in the United States and abroad.

FRANK

Included in the Washington Post's list of the 35 most significant women composers in history (August 2017), identity has always been at the center of composer/pianist Gabriela Lena Frank's music. Born in Berkeley, California (September 1972), to a mother of mixed Peruvian/Chinese ancestry and a father of Lithuanian/Jewish descent, Frank explores her multicultural heritage most ardently through her compositions. Inspired by the works of Bela Bartók and Alberto Ginastera, Frank is something of a musical anthropologist. Winner of a Latin Grammy and nominated for Grammys as both composer and pianist, Gabriela also holds a Guggenheim Fellowship and a USA Artist Fellowship given each year to fifty of the country's finest artists. Her work has been described as "crafted with unself-conscious mastery" (Washington Post), "brilliantly effective" (New York Times), "a knockout" (Chicago Tribune) and "glorious" (Los Angeles Times). Gabriela Lena Frank is regularly commissioned by luminaries such as cellist Yo Yo Ma, soprano Dawn Upshaw, the King's Singers, and the Kronos Quartet. She has received orchestral commissions and performances from leading American orchestras including the Chicago Symphony, the Boston Symphony, the Philadelphia Orchestra, the Atlanta Symphony, the Cleveland Orchestra, the San Francisco Symphony, the Detroit Symphony, and the Houston Symphony. Frank's first opera, The Last Dream of Frida, will be performed by Fort Worth Opera and San Diego Opera in upcoming seasons. Frank has been the subject of several PBS documentaries as well as several scholarly books including the W.W. Norton Anthology: The Musics of Latin America. She has volunteered extensively in hospitals and prisons, with a recent project working with deaf African-American high school students in Detroit who rap in sign language. In 2017, Frank founded the Gabriela Lena Frank Creative Academy of Music, a non-profit training institution that offers emerging composers short-term retreats at Gabriela's two farms in Mendocino County, CA. Frank attended Rice University (B.A. and M.A.) and the University of Michigan (D.M.A.), studying with Sam Jones, William Albright, William Bolcom, Leslie Bassett, and Michael Daugherty. Gabriela Lena Frank's music is published exclusively by G. Schirmer, Inc.

GUEST ENSEMBLE

ENSEMBLE DAL NIENTE

Noted for its presentation of "bracing sonic adventures" (Chicago Tribune), Ensemble Dal Niente, "a superb contemporary-music collective" (The New York Times), aims to drive musical discourse with adventurous projects that exhibit an ambitious range of aesthetic values tied to contemporary life and culture. The ensemble performs music written for large ensemble, chamber music, and solo works, each with relentless attention to interpretation. Dal Niente works with a range of composers, from emerging and established living artists to the post-World War II avant-garde generation. Recent projects include a collaboration with Deerhoof and Marcos Balter; a tour of Latin American countries; performances and recordings of works by George Lewis; an East Coast tour of German music; the Hard Music, Hard Liquor concert series and its annual Party. With each project, programs are curated and presented in ways that highlight the music's relationship with our culture and society. The ensemble's introduction to the international music community was expedited by their acclaimed performances at the Darmstadt Summer Courses for New Music in 2010 and 2012; in 2012, Dal Niente became the first-ever ensemble recipient of the coveted Kranichstein Music Prize and was invited to give the 2014 festival's culminating performance in Darmstadt, Germany. Recordings of Dal Niente's performances of new and recent repertoire have been released on the New Amsterdam, New Focus, Navona, Parlour Tapes+, and Carrier labels. The ensemble also shares performance videos and discussions with their audience through YouTube and other social media. Dal Niente's outreach includes educational activities of all kinds, exhibited most commonly in university settings with composition workshops, masterclasses, discussions, and performances. The ensemble's residencies have included work with faculty and students at various universities including Northwestern, Chicago, Harvard, Stanford, Indiana, Illinois, and Western Michigan, among others.

The ensemble's name, Dal Niente ("from nothing" in Italian), is a tribute to Helmut Lachenmann's Dal niente (Interieur III), the revolutionary style of which serves as an inspiration for its musicians. The name also references its humble beginnings — founded in 2004 by a group of student composers at Northwestern University, the ensemble has risen from obscurity to a position as one of North America's most prominent new music groups.

D'AMBROSIO

Mike D'Ambrosio is Associate Professor of Theory and Composition at Murray State University in Kentucky and has been there since fall 2008. He has held previous teaching positions at Jacksonville State University (AL), Oklahoma State University, University of Dayton, and Cincinnati's College-Conservatory of Music (CCM). He received his D.M.A. and M.M. degrees in music composition from CCM where he studied with Joel Hoffman and Ricardo Zohn-Muldoon (now at Eastman). Originally from Long Island, New York, Mike did his undergraduate work at Lehigh University where he double-majored in music and accounting. Recent commissions include the Luther College Trumpet Ensemble, Celeste Johnson Frehner (University of Missouri-Kansas City), the Murray State University Wind Ensemble, Kentucky Center's Governor School for the Arts Faculty Quintet, and Larry Wyatt (Director of Choral Studies at the University of South Carolina). Mike's music has been performed by the Muncie Symphony, Philadelphia Brass, Monarch Brass, Shepherd School Brass Choir (Rice University), Indiana University's Brass Choir, Cincinnati Symphony Youth Orchestra, the Cincinnati College-Conservatory of Music (CCM) Wind Ensemble, and by soloists and chamber musicians throughout the United States. Mike's music is published with C. Alan Publications, Potenza Music, Triplo Press, and Dorn Publications.

A Song for Saint Cecilia's Day—Commissioned by the University of Chicago for the rededication of its E. M. Skinner organ in Rockefeller Chapel in 2008, William Bolcom's setting of the same famous text set by Handel in the 18th century explores the many sounds of the organ and responds to the musical esprit found in Dryden's poem.

Pillar of Fire was composed in the spring of 2016 and was named the winner of the 2016 Baylor University Composition Contest. The piece is approximately 7 minutes in duration, ternary in form, and features a neo-tonal language that emphasizes the division of the octave into 3 equal parts. The namesake and inspiration of the piece comes from a passage in Exodus: "By day the Lord went ahead of them in a pillar of cloud to guide them on their way and by night in a pillar of fire to give them light, so that they could travel by day or night." (Exodus 13:21, NIV) The image of a pillar of fire that begins on the ground and reaches endlessly into the sky, burns so brightly that it is painful to look at and so hot that nothing can approach it, and is the manifestation of the God of Israel, inspired the harmonic and melodic ideas. At the root of these ideas is the division of the octave into 3 equal parts. This concept serves to invoke images of the Holy Trinity and is the forefront symbolism in the piece. This composition is an exploration of the guidance that God gives to His people. The above verse from Exodus may seem like a simple narrative passage; however, upon deeper reading, it becomes evident that the passage still applies to God's people today. During the day, when the path is clear and free of obstruction, God protects and gently guides His people; but during the night, when the path is dark and losing your way is much easier than staying on the path, God is a Pillar of Fire to show the Way and fill His people with His light. This imagery inspired the larger sections and the emotional arc of the composition.—PL

LENZ

Patrick Lenz (b.1994) is a M.M. Composition student at Rice University from Eastman, Wisconsin. Patrick completed his Bachelor of Music degree at Baylor University. Patrick has studied with Dr. Anthony Brandt, Dr. Scott McAllister, and Dr. Edward Taylor. He has written numerous works for chamber groups and soloists, as well as for large ensembles. Recently, Patrick's composition for Wind Ensemble, Pillar of Fire, was named the winner of the 2016 Baylor University Composition Contest and the 2018 RED NOTE New Music Festival Composition Competition. Notable commissions are Dr. Jun Qian, Assistant Professor of Clarinet at Baylor University, 15.19 Ensemble, and Morpheme Saxophone Quartet. Notable performances include 2016 Baylor University Wind Ensemble under the direction of Dr. J. Eric Wilson, 2018 Illinois State University Wind Symphony at the 2018 RED NOTE New Music Festival, Oregon State University Wind Ensemble at 2017 Western International Band Clinic, the 2015 International Clarinet Association conference. As a saxophonist, Patrick was a member of the Baylor University Wind Ensemble and Baylor University Jazz Ensemble for 4 years, has played as a concerto grosso soloist with the Baylor University Wind Ensemble at their 2016 TMEA Performance, and won the 2016 and 2017 Sempre Pro Musica chamber music competition with Morpheme Saxophone Quartet. Patrick was a student of Dr. Michael Jacobson (Professor of Saxophone, Baylor University) and has studied with Dr. J. Eric Wilson (Director of Bands, Baylor University). Patrick now teaches privately in the Houston Area.

Who Has Seen the Wind?—While living in Helsinki, Finland, I visited the Sibelius Monument, an abstract sculpture by Eila Hiltunen dedicated to Finland's most famous composer. This sculpture uses a cluster of 600 stainless steel pipes to represent Sibelius' music. The air in the pipes, like his music, is ethereal; it cannot be seen—only heard via motion of something like an air column of an organ pipe or wind instrument such as a clarinet.

The impalpable nature of air is also the subject of Christina Rossetti's poem "Who Has Seen the Wind?"

Who has seen the wind?
Neither I nor you.
But when the leaves hang trembling,
The wind is passing through.
Who has seen the wind?
Neither you nor I.
But when the trees bow down their heads,
The wind is passing by.

(1872) Christina Rossetti, 1830-1894

As I read this poem to my young daughter while in Finland, I attempted to write music that represented through sound what Rossetti was trying to describe through words. The resulting work for woodwind ensemble, Who Has Seen the Wind?, is approximately seventeen and a half minutes long and falls into two movements performed attacca. The first movement, inspired by Hiltunen's sculpture, is reminiscent of air passing through a giant pipe organ. The relationship between air, sound, breath and music is captured in the sound of the opening contrabass clarinet tone emerging from the sound of breath from the player. A subsequent E flat chord is passed through the woodwind ensemble for nine minutes. After an introductory passage in the second movement, running sixteenth note passages occur; these are meant to evoke the rustling motion of wind and air discussed in Rossetti's poem. This rustling motion moves through the ensemble and rises to a climactic passage that then dissipates into the upper register of the ensemble. After an extensive vibraphone solo, pitch and rhythm fade away. At the end, all that is left is the sound of a single clarinet—the timbre of a single air column that opened the work.—MCH

HORST

Martha Callison Horst is a composer who has devoted herself to the performance, creation, and instruction of classical music. Her music has also been performed by performers and groups such as the Fromm Players, CUBE, Earplay, Alea III, Empyrean Ensemble, Chicago Composers Orchestra, Susan Narucki, Left Coast Ensemble, Dal Niente, The Women's Philharmonic, Composers, Inc., members of the Scottish Chamber Orchestra, Eric Mandat, and Amy Briggs. Ms. Horst has won the Copland Award, the Symphony Number One Commissioning Prize, the 2005 Alea III International Composition Competition for her work Threads, and the Rebecca Clarke International Composition Competition for her work Cloister Songs, based on 18th century utopian poetry. She has held fellowships at the MacDowell Colony, Atlantic Center for the Arts, Wellesley Conference, Norfolk Chamber Music Festival and Dartington International School in the UK. Her work Piano Sonata No. 1, recorded by acclaimed pianist Lara Downes, was released nationally by Crossover Media, and a recording of her wind ensemble work Straussian Landscapes has been released by the Symphony Number One label. Dr. Horst currently teaches composition and theory at Illinois State University and has also taught at the University of California, Davis, East Carolina University, and San Francisco State University.

Concerto for Soprano Saxophone and Band—The soprano saxophone had far fewer proponents in jazz's classical era than either the alto or tenor, and the only name that comes to mind quickly is Sidney Bechet. This has changed a great deal in the last few decades, and it helps that newer saxophones are considered better in tune and general construction than the old ones. I've also found the soprano saxophone to be sensitive and expressive enough to play for instance my Aubade, which was written for the oboe. It can cross the divide between classical and other music easily when asked. I felt this concerto to be in a celebratory mood, as

I feel I'm beginning to understand the band in a way I didn't when only writing for orchestra. In the last years I've been exploring the possibilities inherent in the band and can say with certainty that this whole concerto would have been far different had it been first conceived for orchestra, as were my Saxophone Concerto Grosso and Clarinet Concerto before their band versions appeared. In an orchestral milieu, even with its growing credibility in the classical world, a soprano saxophone might feel a little like an ugly duckling (which after all will present itself at the end as a swan) as soloist; the meeting might thus be somewhat confrontational and dramatic in dialogue with the orchestra, opening its own wealth of musical possibilities. In the band the soprano saxophone is totally at home and can converse with colleagues like the friendly discourse between piano and orchestra as in a Mozart concerto, and this pushes the dialogue into a more collegial direction and a very different mood. Though I can conceive that a later orchestral version could be fine, I wanted this concerto to feel right now totally like a band piece. There are three movements in this Concerto. Lively, with humor contrasts the opening material featuring the high register of the saxophone with a more bluesy second theme in the lower part. Serenade follows with a sort of South Seas rhythm-and-blues atmosphere. Charade tosses itself between a jazz-type "head" with what customarily follows versus a 1960s early-rockstyle hymn with 1930s echoes. These two things together grow into an apotheosis, ending the concerto.—WB

“A Song for Saint Cecilia’s Day,” by John Dryden

Stanza 1

From harmony, from Heav’nly harmony
 This universal frame began.
 When Nature underneath a heap
 Of jarring atoms lay,
 And could not heave her head,
 The tuneful voice was heard from high,
 Arise ye more than dead.
 Then cold, and hot, and moist, and dry,
 In order to their stations leap,
 And music’s pow’r obey.
 From harmony, from Heav’nly harmony
 This universal frame began:
 From harmony to harmony
 Through all the compass of the notes it ran,
 The diapason closing full in man.

Stanza 2

What passion cannot music raise and quell!
 When Jubal struck the corded shell,
 His list’ning brethren stood around
 And wond’ring, on their faces fell
 To worship that celestial sound:
 Less than a god they thought there could not dwell
 Within the hollow of that shell
 That spoke so sweetly and so well.
 What passion cannot music raise and quell!

Stanza 3

The trumpet’s loud clangor
 Excites us to arms
 With shrill notes of anger
 And mortal alarms.
 The double double double beat
 Of the thund’ring drum
 Cries, hark the foes come;
 Charge, charge, ’tis too late to retreat.

Stanza 4

The soft complaining flute
 In dying notes discovers
 The woes of hopeless lovers,
 Whose dirge is whisper’d by the warbling lute.

Stanza 5

Sharp violins proclaim
 Their jealous pangs, and desperation,
 Fury, frantic indignation,
 Depth of pains and height of passion,
 For the fair, disdainful dame.

Stanza 6

But oh! what art can teach
 What human voice can reach
 The sacred organ’s praise?
 Notes inspiring holy love,
 Notes that wing their Heav’nly ways
 To mend the choirs above.

Stanza 7

Orpheus could lead the savage race;
 And trees unrooted left their place;
 Sequacious of the lyre:
 But bright Cecilia rais’d the wonder high’r;
 When to her organ, vocal breath was giv’n,
 An angel heard, and straight appear’d
 Mistaking earth for Heav’n.

GRAND CHORUS

As from the pow’r of sacred lays
 The spheres began to move,
 And sung the great Creator’s praise
 To all the bless’d above;
 So when the last and dreadful hour
 This crumbling pageant shall devour,
 The trumpet shall be heard on high,
 The dead shall live, the living die,
 And music shall untune the sky.

PROGRAM NOTES

The biographies for William Bolcom and Gabriela Lena Frank are on page 3.

Jakakllito—“The Andean people have always been a singing, a poetically disposed, race....” So writes translator Ruth Stephan in her introduction to The Singing Mountaineers, a collection of Peruvian poems and tales collected by the folklorist, José María Arguedas. These poems form the basis for the choral work Hombre Errante (“Wandering Man”), which attempts to convey a sense of Andean cultures that have endured for thousands of years. The poetry has been freely adapted and rearranged to craft a loose plot—that of the hombre errante, or wandering man of the Andes, home to current-day descendants of the Incas. “Jakakllito” is the lively second movement, inspired by the Peruvian coastal “romancero” style where men sing of conquests, love, and a good drink.—GF

Presented in five movements, William Bolcom’s Suite No. 1 in C Minor for solo violoncello is adapted from the score for the Arthur Miller play Broken Glass, used in part in the Long Wharf (New Haven, CT) and Booth (New York City) Theaters, in the Spring of 1994.

Downloads is a set of miniatures that find interest in the mundane, hyperbolizing the emotional process one goes through when downloading different file types. All of the miniatures combine in the final movement after the first miniature, a small .zip file, is opened.—JF

FRERER

Jack Frerer is an Australian composer of music for concert, film and dance, as well as an instrumentalist, producer and filmmaker based in Manhattan, currently studying composition with John Corigliano at The Juilliard School with the help of the Adrian Weller Scholarship and the Steuermann Memorial Prize. Jack has written pieces and arrangements for a variety of ensembles and performers, and has had works performed around Australia, Europe and the US. In 2018, Jack won the Illinois State RED NOTE Chamber Music composition competition, and was a winner of the Juilliard Orchestra Competition. In 2016, his trio Last In, First Out was given both first prize and the audience prize in the Alba Rosa Viëtor Composition Competition in Utrecht, and was a winner of the Indiana State University Music Now competition. In 2014 Jack won the inaugural Matt Withers Young Australian Music Composition Competition open to all Australian music majors under 30, became the youngest ever finalist in APRA and Tropfest’s TropScore, and was one of three composers selected to partake in the Ku-ring-gai Philharmonic’s Emerging Composers Workshop. Jack has also been the recipient of a Charles Ives Scholarship from the American Academy of Arts and Letters, and has been an ASCAP Morton Gould award finalist. As a filmmaker, Jack has created films for dancers Marcelo Gomes and Julie Kent, institutions including the Juilliard School and Quest Magazine, as well as music videos for bands and ensembles. Jack is also a co-creator and producer of The Roof, a collaborative film series he created with dancer Liana Kleinman which features New York based choreographers and composers.

Leyendas: An Andean Walkabout for string quartet draws inspiration from the idea of mestizaje as envisioned by the Peruvian writer José María Arguedas, where cultures can coexist without the subjugation of one by the other. As such, this piece mixes elements from the western classical and Andean folk music traditions.

“Toyos” depicts one of the most recognizable instruments of the Andes, the panpipe. One of the largest kinds is the breathy toyo which requires great stamina and lung power, and is often played in parallel fourths or fifths.

“Tarqueada” is a forceful and fast number featuring the tarka, a heavy wooden duct flute that is blown harshly in order to split the tone. Tarka ensembles typically also play in fourths and fifths.

“Himno de Zampoñas” features a particular type of panpipe ensemble that divides up melodies through a technique known as hocketing. The characteristic sound of the zampoña panpipe is that of a fundamental tone blown flatly so that overtones ring out on top, hence the unusual scoring of double stops in this movement.

“Chasqui” depicts a legendary figure from the Inca period, the chasqui runner, who sprinted great distances to deliver messages between towns separated from one another by the Andean peaks. The chasqui needed to travel light. Hence, I take artistic license to imagine his choice of instruments to be the charango, a high-pitched cousin of the guitar, and the light-weight bamboo quena flute, both of which are featured in this movement.

“Canto de Velorio” portrays another well-known Andean personality, a professional crying woman known as the llorona. Hired to render funeral rituals even sadder, the llorona is accompanied here by a second llorona and an additional chorus of mourning women (coro de mujeres). The chant Dies Irae is quoted as a reflection of the comfortable mix of Quechua Indian religious rites with those from Catholicism.

“Coqueteos” is a flirtatious love song sung by gallant men known as romanceros. As such, it is direct in its harmonic expression, bold, and festive. The romanceros sing in harmony with one another against a backdrop of guitars which I think of as a vendaval de guitarras (“storm of guitars”).—GF

William Bolcom’s monumental, four-volume collection of Cabaret Songs, setting the lyrics of Arnold Weinstein, were complete in 1996. The first two volumes were composed from 1977 to 1985, and the third and fourth volumes were composed from 1993 to 1996.

Lime Jello Marshmallow Cottage Cheese Surprise—William Bolcom wrote this novelty song for his wife, mezzo-soprano Joan Morris. It was inspired by his childhood playing the piano for local women’s clubs, which would serve bland, processed food that was in vogue in America during the post-World War II era. The song, which is entirely spoken over a piano playing alternating chords, makes fun not only of the unappetizing food but also the genteel manners that prevail at such social gatherings.

Inspired in part by Carrie Jacobs-Bond’s Half-Minute Songs (1911), the Minicabs—mini-cabaret songs—are fashioned from sometimes one-line sketches in Arnold Weinstein’s papers, at other times certain phrases that had been successfully kited from show to opera to play without ever previously finding homes.

LYRICS

At the Last Lousy Moments of Love

At the last lousy moments of love he wanted to tell me the truth.
 At the last writhing rotten moments of love he wanted to tell me the truth—
 About me, of course.
 Thanks, I'll need this.
 At the last lousy moments of love, he wanted to tell me—
 That I wasn't doing too well.
 I was eating and drinking and talking too much.
 He wanted to tell me as a friend at the last lousy moments of love.
 He wanted to tell me he was leaving, he'd waited too long—
 To tell me that I was self-righteous—
 Even when I wasn't wrong,
 And I spoke about friendship,
 'til our friends gave me up as a friend for the season,
 For which reason, he wanted to tell me this truth.
 He wanted to tell me these things, as a friend,
 He wanted to tell me, but he didn't in the end.
 At those last lousy moments of love—
 He said it all, with his body—
 To my best friend.

Lime Jello Marshmallow Cottage Cheese Surprise

Ladies, the minutes will soon be read today
 The garden club and weaving class I'm sure have much to say
 But next week is our culture night, our biggest, best event
 And I've just made a dish for it you'll all find heaven-sent
 It's my lime Jell-O marshmallow cottage cheese surprise
 With slices of pimento. You won't believe your eyes!
 All topped with a pineapple ring and a dash of mayonnaise
 My vanilla wafers round the edge will win your highest praise
 And Mrs. Jones is making scones that are filled with peanut mousse
 To be followed by a chicken mold that's made in the shape of a goose
 For ladies who must watch those pounds, we've found a special dish
 Strawberry ice enshrined in rice with bits of tuna fish!
 And my lime Jell-O marshmallow cottage cheese surprise
 Truly a creation that description defies
 Will go so well with Mrs. Bell's creation of the week
 Shrimp salad topped with chocolate sauce and garnished with a leek
 And Mrs. Perkins' walnut loaf that's crowned with melted cheese
 Was such a hit last Culture Night we asked, "No seconds, please."
 Now you must try her hot dog pie with candied mushroom slices
 Those ladies who resigned last year, they just don't know what nice is
 And my lime Jell-O marshmallow cottage cheese surprise
 I did not steal that recipe! It's lies, I tell you! Lies!
 Our grand award: a picture hat and a salmon sequined gown
 For any girl who tries each dish and keeps her whole lunch down
 I'm sure you all are waiting for the biggest news: dessert!
 We thought of things in molds and rings your diet to subvert
 You must try our chocolate layer cake on a peanut brittle base
 With slices of bananas that make a funny face
 Around the edges, peppermints just swimming in peach custard
 With lovely little curlicues of lovely yellow mustard
 If all this is too much for you, permit me to advise
 More lime Jell-O marshmallow cottage cheese surprise
 I've made heaps!

Waitin'

Waitin' waitin'
 I've been waitin'
 Waitin' waitin' all my life.
 That light keeps on hiding from me,
 But it someday just might bless my sight.
 Waitin' waitin' waitin'

Song of Black Max (As Told by the De Kooning Boys)

He was always dressed in black,
 Long black jacket, broad black hat,
 Sometimes a cape,
 And as thin, and as thin as rubber tape:
 Black Max.
 He would raise that big black hat
 To the big shots of the town
 Who raised their hats right back,
 Never knew they were bowing to
 Black Max.
 I'm talking about night in Rotterdam
 When the right night people of all the town
 Would find what they could
 In the night neighborhood of
 Black Max.
 There were women in the windows
 With bodies for sale
 Dressed in curls like little girls
 In little dollhouse jails.
 When the women walked the street
 With the beds upon their backs,
 Who was lifting up his brim to them?
 Black Max!
 And there were looks for sale,
 The art of the smile —
 (Only certain people walked that mystery mile:
 Artists, charlatans, vaudevillians,
 Men of mathematics, acrobatics and civilians).
 There was knitting-needle music
 From a lady organ-grinder
 With all her sons behind her,
 Marco, Vito, Benno
 (Was he strong! Though he walked like a woman)
 And Carlo, who was five.
 He must be still alive!
 Ah, poor Marco had the syph, and if
 You didn't take the terrible cure those days
 You went crazy and died
 and he did.
 And at the coffin
 Before they closed the lid,
 Who raised his lid?
 Black Max!
 I was climbing on the train
 One day going far away
 To the good old U.S.A.
 When I heard some music
 Underneath the tracks.
 Standing there beneath the bridge,
 Long black jacket, broad black hat,
 Playing the harmonica, one hand free
 To lift that hat to me:
 Black Max,
 Black Max,
 Black Max.

PROGRAM NOTES

In Holz Poppe works with different tunings and microintervallic shifts that cause the system to capsize at a critical point and become messy. The equivalent in Holz to the synthetic flow of energy in Rad [wheels] is a coming to terms with quasi-natural materials and sounds. Holz is the first part of the trilogy Holz, Knochen, Öl [wood, bone, oil]. Poppe speaks in this context of “ambiguous ciphers of the organic.” Wood grows naturally, but it is also worked by hand; it is appreciated as much for its solidity as for its flexibility; the individual grains combine to form a compact body. And of course the solo instrument of the piece, the clarinet, is a woodwind. The music is highly linear; the solo line, to which the whole ensemble seems to be glued, runs through without a pause. It is constructed of small, modular cells that are lapidary and pithy. Poppe reminds us explicitly of the historical procedure of motivic-thematic work.—Rainer Pöllmann, trans. Steven Lindberg

POPPE

Enno Poppe has taught composition at Hochschule für Musik Hanns Eisler in Berlin, at Darmstädter Ferienkursen für Neue Musik and at Impuls Akademie (Graz). He has received commissions from institutions such as Ensemble Intercontemporain, Musée du Louvre, and Donaueschinger Musiktage, and his music has been performed by Arditti Quartet, Pierre Boulez, Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra, BBC Scottish Symphony Orchestra, and many others. Among the ensembles that regularly perform his music are Ensemble Intercontemporain, Ensemble Modern, London Sinfonietta, and Klangforum Wien. His many prizes include the Boris-Blacher-Preis, the Busoni-Preis, the Förderpreis, and the Hans-Werner-Henze prize..

L'addio a Trachis—Notes provided from stage.

SCIARRINO

Salvatore Sciarrino is an Italian composer, born in Sicily and based in Milan. His works have been widely recorded and performed. He has composed for Teatro alla Scala, Amsterdam Concertgebouw, London Symphony Orchestra, Tokyo Suntory Hall, Donaueschinger Musiktage, and many others. He has been the author of most of his operas' librettos, as well as of a book about musical form: Le figure della musica, da Beethoven a oggi. He has taught at the Music Academies of Milan, Perugia, and Florence, and has won many awards, including Prince Pierre de Monaco, the Feltrinelli International Award, and the Salzburg Music Prize.

After L'Addio / Felt—is a two movement piece composed in collaboration with Ben Melsky. The premiere of this work took place in a recital in which a performance of Salvatore Sciarrino's Addio a Trachis preceded. After L'Addio features varying levels of referentiality and filiation with Addio..., from literal quoting to variation, to more esoteric and personal connections. Generally speaking, After is a frantic and highly tactile piece in which different levels of friction between hands and strings become syntactically relevant. Felt appears as the textural opposite of After in that the contact between performer and instrument is reduced considerably: the right hand plays with a felt pick for the entirety of the movement and the left hand features, for the most part, harmonics. — TIGS

Tomás I. Gueglio Saccone is an Argentine composer currently based in Chicago. His music has been described as “touchingly harmonic” (Chicago Classical Review) and of “an exquisite weight” (Peter Margasak - Best of Bandcamp). In his creative work, Tomás strives to devise unique and surreal sound worlds through purposefully blending a variety of musical lineages and styles.

Metaphors central to his recent work are private languages, the slippery logic of dreams, and states of disorientation and intoxication. His music has been performed across the Americas and Europe by renowned ensembles and soloists like eighth blackbird, Pacifica and Spektral string quartets, Ensemble Dal Niente, Latitude 49, Marco Fusi and Ben Melsky. Recent and upcoming projects include the composition of a piece with Delfos Danza to be presented in Ensemble Dal Niente’s “Staged” series, the devising of a music theater piece based on the figure of Tango pioneer Rosendo Mendizábal, and the release of his first solo album, Duermevela, in the Winter of 2019. Tomás holds a Ph.D in composition from the University of Chicago (‘16), a MMus from Syracuse University (‘10) and a BMus from the Universidad Católica Argentina (‘07). He has attended numerous festivals and workshops where he worked with composers such as Brian Ferneyhough, Melinda Wagner, Raphaël Cendo, and Mathias Spahlinger. Born in Buenos Aires, a major influence in his musical upbringing was Gerardo Gandini whose workshop he attended between 2003 and 2007.

Fall for solo harp and electronics is the sixth and second last part of the ballet music “Maa” (meaning land or carth in Finnish), which in its totality is instrumented for seven instruments and electronics. The whole ensemble (flute, percussion, harpsicord/keyboards, harp, violin, viola and cello) is playing together only in the last part. The ballet itself has no storyboard. One general theme is passing from one state to another; opening doors, gates, falling, crossing the water. Fall is a short and relatively virtuoso piece for harp. The title suggests an idea about falling into an underworld, and the overall shape of the piece follows this idea, starting from a high register and gradually opening the ambitus during the piece.—KS

Kaija Saariaho is a Finnish composer. Her experience in computer-assisted composition and in working on tape and with live electronics influenced her approach to writing for orchestra, with its emphasis on the shaping of dense masses of sound in slow transformations. Although much of her catalogue comprises chamber works, she has turned increasingly to larger forces and broader structures, such as Orion, Laterna Magica, and

Circle Map. One of her most frequently performed works, Graal Théâtre for violin and orchestra, features detailed notation using harmonics, microtonality and a continuum of sound extending from pure tone to unpitched noise. Her catalogue also includes several acclaimed operas, and her works have been performed by the Los Angeles Philharmonic, the Tokyo Symphony Orchestra, the Metropolitan Opera, and many others. Saariaho has received the Grawemeyer Award, Wihuri Prize, Nemmers Prize, Sonning Prize, and Polar Music Prize, and in 2015 she was the judge of the Toru Takemitsu Composition Award..

Signs, Games, and Messages is a cycle of musical aphorisms which Hungarian composer György Kurtág has been amassing for decades, a collection which he is constantly revising and adding to. These brief musical thoughts have been compared to short “diary entries” but their intensity is anything but casual. As a fervent admirer of both J. S. Bach and Irish playwright Samuel Beckett, Kurtág uses the very brevity of these emotionally raw, often playful pieces to hint at a more timeless dimension of existence. In the words of the American composer Stephen Eddins: “Each movement takes a striking, attention-grabbing idea, plays with it very briefly and then moves on before it wears out its welcome.”

—Christian Tetzlaff

György Kurtág was born at Lugos (Lugoj in Romania), and studied composition in Timisoara and Budapest before studying with Marianne Stein in Paris, where he attended the courses of Messiaen and Milhaud. As a result, he rethought his ideas on composition and marked the first work he wrote after his return to Budapest, a string quartet, as his opus 1. Kurtág worked as a vocal coach and accompanist with the Béla Bartók Music Secondary School in Budapest and with soloists of the National Philharmonia, and became professor of chamber music at the Academy of Music. He has been composer in residence with the Berlin Philharmonic, the Vienna Konzerthaus, as well as in the Netherlands and Paris. He won the prestigious 2006 Grawemeyer Award for Music Composition for his ...concertante.... György Kurtág is published by Boosey & Hawkes.

eyam iii—“One day, you’re there. And then, all of a sudden, there’s less of you. And you wonder where that part went? If it’s living somewhere outside of you? And you keep thinking... maybe you’ll get it back? And then you realize: it’s just gone.”—from AMC’s Television Series Mad Men, “Meditations in an Emergency” (Feb. 2013)

Ann Cleare is an Irish composer working in the areas of concert music, opera, extended sonic environments, and hybrid instrumental design. Her work explores the static and sculptural nature of sound, probing the extremities of timbre, texture, color, and form. Her work has been commissioned and presented by major broadcasters such as the BBC, NPR, ORF, RTÉ, SWR, WDR for festivals such as Gaudeamus Week, International Music

Institute Darmstadt, MATA Festival, and the Huddersfield Contemporary Music Festival. She has worked with groups such as The International Contemporary Ensemble, The National Symphony Orchestra of Ireland, JACK Quartet, and The BBC Scottish Symphony Orchestra. Ann studied at University College Cork, IRCAM, and holds a Ph.D. from Harvard University. Her scores are published by Project Schott New York. She is Associate Lecturer in Composition at the University of York in England.

Shadow—“Everyone carries a shadow, and the less it is embodied in the individual’s conscious life, the blacker and denser it is . . . In spite of its function as a reservoir for human darkness—or perhaps because of this—the shadow is the seat of creativity . . . The dark side of his being, his sinister shadow . . . represents the true spirit of life as against the arid scholar.”—C. G. Jung, 1938

This solo, composed by Rebecca Saunders, explores the play of shadow with vertical, harmonic clouds of differing density and complexity. Clouds of color are projected into the acoustic resonance, or “shadow,” of the preceding gesture. As a study, it is a detailed exploration of the sostenuto and sustaining pedals.

SAUNDERS

Berlin-based British composer Rebecca Saunders studied composition at Edinburgh University with Nigel Osborne and with Wolfgang Rihm in Karlsruhe. Since 2003, Saunders has steadily expanded the spectrum of her compositions, beginning with chroma (2003-2013), a collage of 6-23 instrument groups and sound sources distributed throughout a space. Saunders' music has been performed and premiered by many prestigious ensembles, including Klangforum Wien, Ensemble Modern, the Berlin Philharmonic, and the Arditti Quartet. Her many awards include an Ernst von Siemens Foundation Award, the Paul Hindemith Prize, and the prestigious Mauricio Kagel Music Preis. Saunders is professor for composition at the Hanover University of Music, Theatre and Media, and teaches at the Darmstadt Summer Courses and at the Impuls Academy in Graz. She is a member of the Berlin Academy of Arts and the Sachsen Academy of Arts in Dresden. Saunders' music has been published by Edition Peters since 1997.

After Some Remarks by CW on His Work—I recently attended a talk by Christian Wolff, the eminent elder statesman of American experimentalism and the last living link to the New York School. At 83, his unassuming wisdom and humor shine through, and the talk was a retrospective of a life marked by stylistic changes, priorities, and commitments, and a shifting relationship between art and politics, while still pointing to an unknown future. While I'm touched by the singularity of approach to sound, I'm mostly liberated by his belief in shared decision-making and breaking down the hierarchies of the creative act. This short piece, which lives moment-to-moment in a series of delicate sound objects and intimate dialogues between the clarinet and harp, was completed in the aftermath of this encounter. It is dedicated to Ben Melsky and Katie Schoepflin, whose music-making and collaborative spirit encouraged and inspired me during the writing process. —WL

LU

Composer and pianist Wang Lu was born in Xi'an, the ancient capital of China. Being brought up in a musical family with strong Chinese opera and folk music traditions, her works reflect a very natural identification with those influences, through the prism of contemporary instrumental techniques and new sonic possibilities. Since 2015, Wang Lu is an Assistant Professor of Music at Brown University, where she teaches composition and theory. Winner of the Berlin Prize and a Guggenheim Fellowship, Lu has received performances and commissions from Orchestre National de Lille, IRCAM/Ensemble Intercontemporain, Ensemble Modern, Alarm Will Sound, Minnesota Orchestra, American Composers Orchestra, Albany Symphony, Momenta Quartet, So Percussion, and many others. She has participated in numerous festivals such as Gaudeamus Music Week, Tanglewood Music Center, Cabrillo Music Festival, and the Beijing Modern. After graduating with highest honors from the Beijing Central Conservatory of Music, she received her doctoral degree in composition at Columbia University, where she studied with Fred Lerdahl, Tristan Murail, George Lewis, and Chou Wen-chung.

un-fini I—Nodding to Giacinto Scelsi's trio Okanagon (1968), Mark Andre expands the solo harp's resonating potential with the addition of bass drum and tam-tam, both played by the harpist. The meta-instrument sets the stage for the work's primary thread: muting vs. resonance. Fascinated by the careful finger-ballet of a harpist activating and deactivating strings (at times seemingly simultaneously), Andre asks the player to control the instrument's sonic decay in equal measure to its sound production. The resonant, cumulative sounds—metallic, cavernous, and percussive—morph fluidly as elements are added or subtracted. —Ben Melsky

ANDRE

Based in Germany, French composer Mark Andre studied with Gérard Grisey at the Conservatoire National Supérieur de Musique de Paris and with Helmut Lachenmann at the Staatliche Hochschule für Musik und darstellende Kunst Stuttgart, and attended the Ferienkurse in Darmstadt in 1996. Among his honors are the Kompositionspreis from the city of Stuttgart, the Blaue Brücke, the Kranichsteiner Musikpreis at the Ferienkurse in Darmstadt, the Internationaler Kompositionspreis of Oper Frankfurt, the Förderpreis der Ernst von Siemens Musikstiftung in Munich, the Orchesterpreis der Donaueschinger Musiktage, and the Förderpreis of the Berliner Kunstpreis from the Akademie der Künste in Berlin. He is a member of the Berlin Academy of Arts, the Sachsen Academy of Arts in Dresden, and the Bavarian Academy of Fine Arts in Munich, and was named a Chevalier des Arts et des Lettres by the government of France in 2011. He has lectured at the Ferienkurse in Darmstadt, the Hochschule für Musik und Darstellende Kunst in Frankfurt am Main, and the Conservatoire à rayonnement régional de Strasbourg, and has taught as Professor für Komposition at the Hochschule für Musik Carl Maria von Weber in Dresden since 2009.

PROGRAM NOTES

Inspired by the music of Cuba, the opening dance of Two Dances, Habanera (literally translating to “Havana”), was originally imported to Cuba in the late 18th century by way of Spain. This contradanza (the Spanish version of the popular English country dance) then received a healthy dose of French influence from nearby Haiti, resulting in a blend of European and Afro-Caribbean styles. The most distinct characteristic of this dance form is undoubtedly the syncopated habanera-rhythm, which is commonly found within African and Afro-Latin music. Wildly popular in Cuba in the 19th century, the Cuban habanera was subsequently brought to Western Europe where its influence can be heard in the music of composers such as Jules Massenet, Maurice Ravel, Emmanuel Chabrier, and of course Georges Bizet in his opera, Carmen. Although the origin of the word rumba is unclear, it is thought possibly to be another term for “party”, as used by Cubans of African descent. This dance form originated in northern Cuba in the late 19th century, the result of the blending of African music and dance as well as the Spanish-influenced “coros de clave” singing groups. Central to this singing ensemble, in addition to the rumba, is the clave: both as a percussion instrument and, more importantly, a type of complex rhythmic pattern that gives the rumba its distinct syncopated texture.

Tes Souvenirs translates to “your memories.” At once, it concerns both the memories that a single person may have in addition to our memories of other people. A few years ago, a friend of mine passed away from cancer while he was a high school senior. His mother still posts to his Facebook page. He continues to live, in a sense, because the collective memory of him is kept alive. His statuses are still visible, so his own memory of himself persists. I promised to myself that I would keep him alive in my memories. Before writing this piece, I couldn’t get David out of my head; everywhere I walked, images of his laughter and charisma permeated my thoughts. I wanted to bring this phenomenon into the piece itself: a constant melody that circles around itself against the passing of time, obsessively clinging onto its surrounding musical fabric.

Recontextualisation is the process of rejecting a textual, semantic, or semiotic object from its authentic context to place it into another context. Intratextual recontextualisation is the application of recontextualisation within the same text. As “the text” in the piece I refer to the collection of my own compositional history. As any element of the text refers to something formerly voiced in the process of intratextual recontextualisation, and any musical object presented in the piece was already presented and is being presented in another context.

The inspiration ripples is from one of my experiences traveling this February in Venice. One gloomy night, I was floating on a gondola, and I felt the coldness of the whole world. It was indescribable, archaic, dim, and dreamy. As I floated, landscapes quieted steadily, and the lights surrounding me were bright and multicolored. The water reflected the lights like a mirror, with the rays penetrating the islets, and moving through the surrounding buildings. The effect on the water looked like an oil painting. In the distance, I heard a beautiful soprano who was singing a melancholy, romantic melody, slowly, her voice fading into the twilight. In this piece, I have tried to capture the sound of her voice, and the sight of the colorful lights refracting on the water.

Horrorscene –

A choice: which is your true head?

Yes... sometimes monsters shriek outside,
but this call is coming from inside the house.

Run, fearful, to nostalgic times,
heedless of the slaughters past.
But what Horror's been awake within?
And how long before it turns to you?

Eviscerated, let's consider:

Who walks about with crooked speech,
winks with his eyes, speaks with his feet?
Who's always pointing his finger?
Who is it that's become the villain?
Who is it that's become the killer?

Show us your true head.

KENTY

Howie Kenty is a Brooklyn-based composer and sound designer, occasionally known by his musical alter-ego, Hwarg. His music, called “remarkable” with “astonishing poetic power” by the International Compendium Prix Ars Electronica, is stylistically diverse, encompassing ideas from contemporary classical, electronic, rock, sound art, theatre, and everything in between, occasionally with visual and theatrical elements. Throughout all of his creations runs the idea that the experience of a piece is more than listening to the music; there is a wholeness of vision and an awareness of environment that attempts to fully draw the audience into his works. Besides regularly premiering pieces internationally, serving as an executive producer of the New York City Electroacoustic Music Festival, teaching, and working with artists like DJ Spooky and Amanda Palmer, Howie plays guitar in the progressive rock band The Benzene Ring. He is currently a Graduate Council Fellow PhD student at Stony Brook University, studying with Matthew Barnson, Margaret Schedel, and Sheila Silver. Howie's Scherzo; Dance. received an Honorary Mention in Prix Ars Electronica 2008, and his We Have Less Time Than You Think won a first prize commission at Shanghai Electronic Music Week 2013. commission in the 2017 Null-state Chaosflöte competition, competition winner for the 2018 Open Space Festival of New Music, and an ASCAP Plus+ award. Hear more at www.hwarg.com.

The Organum Etudes allude to popular music and medieval music. The work is entitled etude not for any particular technique explored, but rather for the study of continuation: old music within modern music.

render me—This work is a rendering. It is:

- Submitted to you, the listener
- Performed by the musicians
- A depiction: a new model of resonance for the piano, of digital processing by analog means
- An animation of a still, a scale's slow unfolding
- A processing of a formal outline, given color and shade its realization
- A translation of an imagined sound-world.

Abandoned—We are living in an abandoned world, full of dilapidated urban edifices and industrial parks, radiated soil, disconnected train stations, old vessels, food dumps and neglected companion pets, displaced families and children—and, most of all, unperformed music works. Abandonment probably has reason, probably one paining all with sadness, loneliness, frustration and despair. My work Abandoned is my attempt at capturing these feelings. It is a dedication to my own melodies and inspirations and techniques that have been abandoned.
